Glades Growers Formulate Water Control Requests

Representatives Go On Record To Invite FCD Engineers To Last Preliminary Meeting

Representatives of the Glades agricultural area met at the chamber of commerce building here Tuesday night and reported on the water control problems in their areas at the second preliminary meeting scheduled prior to a public water control meeting to be held here some time after Jan. 15 with FCD and U. S. Engineers.

The group went on record to invite Turner Wallis and Lamar Johnson, FCD engineers, to meet with them at an informal dinner meeting for the third and last preliminary meeting.

Joe Frothingham, representing the Miami Canal area, reported that he had met with land owners in his section and that they mapped the construction and work which they needed. He listed these as the following: L-1 to a junction with L-7; cleaning of the Boles and Miami Canals and installation of pumps at the lake end of the Miami Canal.

He said that the area represents the major portion of the population and development and that the proposed construction would relieve the water situation there.

Representing the islands, R. Y. Creech, Sr., said, "we are opposed to any change from the 14-17 in the elevation of Lake Okechobee. Any other level would create a condition under which it would not be economically feasible to attempt to farm. If a higher elevation is agreed upon as being the best for the majority of the area, we have decided to sell."

Speaking for the North New River area, John L. Evans said that the section needs means of immediate relief until other provisions of the program are completed. He advocated the construction of a dike from the lake to the west Broward County.

Bean Deal Slumps In Demoralized Market Condition

Growers Find It Uneconomical To Harvest Bean Crops

Glades growers who have fields of beans were beginning to believe that there is no Santa this week when the market became completely demoralized with no improvement in sight.

Cold weather in the northern sections has caused sluggish movement of products and in addition markets will be closed three days next week and three days the week after due to the holidays. This means that the market will be over by the time relief comes. Consequently, bean harvests were practically shut down this week with a little canning and quick freeze produce moving in bulk.

American Fruit Growers closed options for beans on Wednesday due to market conditions. Beans moving to canners brought $3 to $3.50 for Golden Wonder and $1.40 to $1.75 a bushel in bulk.

Harvesting should pick up after the holidays for most of the growers are holding up everything possible until that time.

Leafy produce offered a brighter picture this week and small volume of celery moving brought $3 to $3.50 for Golden Wonder and $1.40 to $1.75 a bushel in bulk.

The demand for celery and escarol was good bringing $1.50 a bushel.

The radish market held firm this week after the price drop about ten days ago. Jacob Graber and Sons reported that about four or five cars were moving out a day and that the produce was bringing about 60¢ a bushel. Graber and Sons reported a very light radish movement this week and prices of 65¢ a bushel.

Roll callings for the week ending Wednesday were:

Public Areas More Decorative This Year Than Previous Christmas

It's four days before Christmas, and the city is a setting for a yuletide fantasy with decorations in the business sections, public areas and homes.

The downtown town district instills the Christmas spirit with its strings of colored lights along Ave. A and Main, decorated Christmas windows and strains of Christmas music swelling from loud speakers which are sponsored by the merchants' division of the chamber and Oceola Labor, operated by the Lake Shore Radio. The firemen and Water Department staff were responsible for installing the light strings.

CHRISTMAS FUNDAMENTALS

Although nineteen centuries have come and gone since the birth of Christ and although today thoughts are involved in busy shopping, trees and Santa Claus, the birthday of the divine man reveals that He is still the center of the human race and that his impression on the world lives through those of dictators and rulers are long since in history's van.

The man of whom we are thinking was born in an obscure village; his exact birth place, a lowly barn. He was visited by peoples of the fields, not potatoes. His parents were only peasants.

This simple beginning was the theme of his earthly existence. His trade was that of a carpenter and itinerant preacher. His supporters, fishermen, not men of social rank and financial standing. He never held an office and never owned a home. His only power was that of his divine manhood.

When the tide of public opinion turned against him, and He was nailed to a crude cross, officers cast dice for his only possession, his robe. Upon death He was placed in a borrowed grave.

And yet, "all the armies that have ever marched, and all the navies that have ever been built, and all the parliaments that have ever reigned, put together have not affected the life of men upon this earth as powerfully as that one solitary life."

His life and teaching exemplified the naked truth which points the way to "Peace on earth good will toward men."

He chose for his channels of accomplishments the simple and every day customs and his workers from unknown fishermen. He superseded social progress and trends.

Today we commemorate his birth at Christmas as the world disregards his simple teachings and example so often; consequently, we have no "peace on earth" or in our state, or in our town. Our lives are corrupt, our ideals, involved, machinery and stiff customs. There are all too few sinners seeking after his view. Simeon, a devout man, was promised that he would not see death until he should behold the Christ Child because his faith was so great and his belief so strong.

Simplicity and unclouded fundamentals are the keys to Christmas.

certain on procedures such as putting in bridges and installing pump houses because we do not know what the engineers' plans are. We want to know what they plan to do and what the right-of-ways will be. We also are worried about the taxing of the Hillsboro because during the heavy rains in the hills we looked about four inches from being out of the water."

Ralph Kurtz, grower in the Okelanta area, said, "It would be a mistake for this area to give up without a struggle for the installation of pumps around Lake Okechobee. These will assist run-off and help us keep the water in the lake for the time we may need it. These pumps should operate both ways."

Creech explained that two of the reasons the engineers hope to put pumps in at the lower end are that to put them in at the lake end they would have to go through the levee or over the levee to install locks this side of the hurricane gates.

Louis Friend, speaking for the West Palm Beach Canal district, said, "Until the FCD completes L-8 we are in trouble. The levee is diverting water the wrong way. We feel that the started construction of L-8 at the wrong end, and the only way to relieve the condition is to rush it to completion and put in a pump where L-8 enters the conservancy area. If L-8 is not completed by next summer, it is hard to predict what might happen. John Clarence Petrie, Pahoek, who presided over the meeting, stated, "What immediate relief will be provided until construction is completed, what provisions will be made for vast acceleration of improvements in the agricultural area; has the change in condition influenced the time of the program; will the elimination of lake pumps seriously affect the run-off. He instructed the representatives to determine the amount of development and population increase and the anticipated increase in the future in their respective areas."

Summarizing the questions which were an outgrowth of the meeting, Henry O. Earwood, who presided over the meeting, stated, "What immediate relief will be provided until construction is completed, what provisions will be made for vast acceleration of improvements in the agricultural area; has the change in condition influenced the time of the program; will the elimination of lake pumps seriously affect the run-off. SHOOTIN' BLANKS

To begin with Christmas is the commemoration of Christ's birth not the celebration of Santa Claus. Christ was born in a semitropical climate and the scene of his birth included palm trees and other vegetation comparable to that of Florida. The scene was flavored with an oriental accent hardly similar to that of the brisk touch of north winds.

Consider the symbols of Christmas. The colors are red and green emphasized with pine and holly. The colors are red and green emphasized with pine and holly. The colors are red and green emphasized with pine and holly.

In our back yards and front yards Christmas exists in a material form. The colors are red and green emphasized with pine and holly. The colors are red and green emphasized with pine and holly.

All of the floral decorations which we have are imported from hot houses in the North as that the people might realize that it's Christmas and have a little color in their homes.

Christmas is also a time of visiting friends. Here we can go from house to house in our shirt sleeves while in the North traffic is tied up and bogged down to heavy snows and icy streets.

Those who sigh, "I can't get the Christmas spirit, for it doesn't seem like Christmas here" are wasting their time, are blind to the treasures in their own back yards and are unaware that they are living in the land of Christmas.

Russell Kay

I have a fair education and am usually able to read and understand most of the reading matter that reaches my desk, but now and then I encounter a manuscript prepared by the master-minds in Washington that throws me into a tailspin and leaves me gasping for breath.

Maybe I'm kidding myself, but I consider that I am a reasonable man, slow to anger and eager to learn. However, when I encounter a document such as the annual report of the Library of Congress, which contains between 200 and 300 pages, printed on the highest quality paper and handsomely bound in buckram at the taxpayers' expense,

I gasp in amazement and then develop a slow burn.

YOU, my fine-freighted friend, whether you know it or not, had money deducted from your shrinking pay check to pay the publication of the following, which I quote from page 11 of the 1949 annual report:

"But if the Library is, as is designed to be and, as, in the past, it most assuredly has been, a popular institution, popularly supported, administered and sustained; if it is, inevitably perhaps, but nevertheless indisputably and integrally a part of the intellectual endowment of every citizen; if solely to diffuse, it has scrupulously amassed the recorded knowledge it contains; if it belongs to the experience of its days; if it is sensitive to the expectations of it and applies whatever strength it has to their fulfillment; if learned spuriousness cannot taint, nor curtail, nor embarrass, nor divert, nor betray, nor in any way diminish its steadfast demonstration of the freedoms of inquiry and access and discovery and choice; if its ambitions do not exceed its opportunities for useful service; if it has acquired and exploited for perfected special skills; if it is an active agent as well as an obedient servant of the nobler energies of a people; if it is aware of, and disturbed by, and in rebellion against, its own short comings; if performance of duty is its single purpose and its duty, the enrichment of society; if its traditions are not marred, but are, by the passage of time, approved; if hallow precedent does not exact conformity nor impose renunciation; if it has confidence in its maturity; if, through all, it has attached character, an identity, a realization, 'non facta est, que invenire' at vero multo melliora fuit' (Cicero: De Senectute, vii-23), then the passage of its first 150 years may peril some attention.

I think that the guy who wrote that was trying to say that the Library of Congress is a credit to an enlightened nation, has performed a masterful job in assembling and preserving material and should be a feeling of pride in the minds and hearts of all Americans.

Now I have personally visited the Library of Congress on several occasions. My heart throbs with pride in the knowledge that my country possesses such a worthy and worthwhile institution. If I had my way every American citizen would visit it and acquaint themselves with the treasures it contains. It is truly an American Shrine of which even the humblest citizen may well be proud.

I don't know how many copies of the report were published or how much you and I paid for its production, but for my money I once gave out of a house and who received it ever read it, or reading it understand what it was about, then I take off my hat to higher education in America and pull in my horns.

The thing that impresses me is the wanton waste of taxpayers' money on the publication of such tripe as this. Even if it didn't cost any more than a few thousand dollars, it still represents a gross waste of public funds, and it is the publication of thousands and thousands of similar language of interest and value to no one that is bleeding this nation white.

Every government department, commission and bureau, plus every state bureau or department, has its own costly and expensive reports that nobody reads, or if they did read, can understand. All of these combined cost you and me millions of dollars.

Sure, the guys who write them have a lot of fun, they are on the gravy train and I give them credit for trying to do something to ease their ails. But if you as a citizen and taxpayer feel that you were served in paying for such service, I'll take a bow and retire. But for my money, if 99 and 99/100 per cent of all the run-of-the-mill reports were left unpublished and the money they cost the taxpayer was used for some other worthwhile purpose, I feel that we would be much better served.

VETERANS INFORMATION AND SERVICE

By Melvin T. Dixon
State Service Officer

Ex-servicemen and women are vitally interested in the benefits their Government offers. This interest is evidenced by the many inquiries received by the State Service Office. The following questions pertain only to veterans' benefits enacted by Congress.

Q. My nephew is a veteran of Korea and was discharged after a shell fragment paralyzed him from the waist down. Is he eligible for a VA grant for the purchase of a "wheelchair house" or is that benefit limited to World War II veterans?

A. Your nephew may be eligible for the VA "wheelchair housing" grant, provided he meets certain requirements. He should file an application with VA. The benefit is not limited to World War II veterans.

Q. May I be treated by my own physician, on the outside, at VA's expense?

A. You may, if you have a service-connected disability that requires treatment, and you receive prior VA approval for such care.

Q. Is it possible to get a GI business loan to buy a car for pleasure purposes, or furniture for my home?

A. No. The loan must be used for business purposes only. I was hurt in a railroad accident recently, as I was on my way, under orders, to report for induction into the armed forces. Being permanently disabled, I was not accepted for duty. Am I eligible for GI insurance that's available to disabled Korean veterans—even though I've never been in uniform?

A. Yes. You may be eligible for GI insurance, but you must apply for it within one year from the date you suffered your disability. Get in touch with your nearest Veterans Service Officer or write the State Service Office as soon as possible, in order to get full details and take the necessary steps.

Parris Island's Marine Band To Be Orange Bowl Feature

Parris Island's (S.C.) famed Marine band will be a featured attraction during Miami's 18th Annual Orange Bowl Festival this year. The 100-piece Marine unit will make its initial festival appearance when it entertains at the Orange Bowl Kick-off luncheon on December 27. On December 29 the Marine band will lead the Junior Orange Bowl Parade in Coral Gables.

The King Orange Jamboree parade New Year's Eve will be led by the Marine band, and on New Year's Day the band will perform at the Orange Bowl grand classic. The band, under the direction of Master Sgt. M. R. Barton, its present bandmaster, took part in 1950-51 festivities as bandmaster of the Camp Lejeune (N.C.) Marine band.

When they were ready to leave, the head angel took count and discovered that all the angels were present and ready except one. They searched among the pearly clouds and every other place they could think of, but no angel could be found.

For the first time they started to earth with one of the host rising. Several hours later Ephrill awoke in his resting place behind a hidden cloud, which was softer and more feathery than all the others. The silence of the kingdom frightened him, and he wondered where all the angels were. As he tread on the empty pearly steps, he realized that he had missed the annual Christmas journey to earth.

Very, very sad, Ephrill sat down and his crystal tear drops fell from his eyes, for he would not get to make the earth people happy this Christmas.

Just when Ephrill was the saddest, the big moon came by ready to start on his nightly round.

"Cheer up, Little Ephrill," said the moon. "I know where there are children who never hear the angels sing on Christmas. On my journey I cover the world and there is down in the South land a section called the Everglades where lazy canals meander and where the saw grass grows and the soil is blacker than midnight. If you will come with me, I will lead you to this land and you will sing and make them know that it is Christmas Eve.

Ephrill wiped away his tears, and his face brightened in his most wonderful smile. "My moon if you will show me the way, I will certainly follow and try to make the Glades folks happy."

So Ephrill climbed on the moon's golden back and started earthward in a very different direction than customary. Mr. moon finally led Ephrill off in a field of grass which was silver in his light. "I will pick you up at this very spot tomorrow night," he instructed Ephrill, "and you'd better be here."

He arrived the next night. So Ephrill started his round and went by several houses where he made each child's dreams happier and the candles shine brighter. He sang the Christmas tunes which he had practiced with the other angels although he rushed the rhythm a little and added a note or two of his own occasionally.

In the morning when the Glades people gathered at the church, the bell rang as it had never rung, and the people sang as they had never sung. The notes of the old piano sounded rich and golden as though they originated from a heavenly chorus, and the people whispered among themselves of the wondrous thing that had happened. Ephrill, too, was the happiest he had ever been in their midst although he could not be seen by them.

All too soon it was time to meet the old moon again by the pond where the angels met. Ephrill had had an experience which he would never forget.

When he returned to heaven the host was already assembled to decide what should be done about Ephrill, the newest and slightest angel.

The great hall was silent and the other angels directed their glances at him. But the newest, slightest angel was not unhappy. He went right up in front and told the story of his strange Christmas Eve.

He told them of a strange new country where the saw grass was silver in the light of the Moon and where the soil was blacker than midnight. He told them that there were people there too and how he had made them sing as they had never sung and how he had made the church bell ring as it had never rung.

Also he told them that in that land everything was green and that great red flowers and berries bloomed although it was winter time.

Ever since that Christmas, part of the angels have come to the Glades led by the host, the eve of the birth of the Christ Child. Indeed, this Christmas Ephrill, the newest and slightest angel, and the others will be here again.

The Palm Beach County Commission recently took another step in the boards road construction program in the Glades when they voted to furnish the State Road Department with a deed to right-of-way for State Road 717.

This strip of road is one of several that was included in the road department's budget this year at the request of Commission Chairman Paul Rardin of Canal Point.

County Engineer J. M. Boyd said that bids for construction of this road had already been received by the state. Contracts for building the highway are expected to be awarded soon.

Holly Brings Yuletide Colors To State Parks

Holly may have given the colors of red and green for Christmas because in snowy countries where the trees have lost their leaves, it was difficult to find colorful decorations in the long ago before colored paper was available.

Florida has many beautiful trees of American holly, especially where northern trees court southern trees in such places as Florida Caverns State Park, near Marianna; Torreya State Park, near Bristol; O'Leno State Park, near High Springs; and Gold Head Branch State Park, near Keystone Heights.

But Florida has other hollies. There is a miniature of the American holly that grows as a small bush on our sandhills. Best of all, there is the dahoon or cassinie holly which, if it grew taller and had thorns on its leaves, could pass for its big brother, the American holly.

While we find dahoon or cassinie holly all over Florida, we see it frequently in south Florida, noticeably at Highlands Hammock State Park, near Sebring, and at High Taylor Birch State Park, Fort Lauderdale. When it is fruiting, it puts on a gorgeous display of color which lasts for months and far outshines the American holly in green leaves and red berries.

It is easy to imagine that the homelike colonists were delightedly surprised to find English holly's twin sister, the American holly, waiting for them when they got here. If they did not have a botanist with them, they could not tell the difference.

The State Livestock Sanitary Board has asked for a crackdown on movements of uncertified livestock into the state. It is said there is a danger of spreading disease among Florida stock unless regulations requiring incoming cattle to have health certificates are strictly enforced.

FLA IMMUNIZATION PROGRAMS PAYING OFF

Florida's immunization programs are paying off big dividends in terms of disease prevention and the saving of lives. Dr. Wilson T. Sowder, State Health Officer, said recently. Private physicians, notably those concerned with babies and child care, are playing a significant role in the immunization program, he added.

"They are making more mothers 'immunization-conscious' with the result that more babies and children are receiving this protection early in life," Dr. Sowder stated.

Figures compiled by the state health agency's Bureau of Vital Statistics and the Bureau of Local Health Services indicate that as the number of people being immunized against certain diseases increases, the number of deaths from these causes decrease.

the power of immunization to safeguard health is in the field of smallpox. This disease, which in the past caused many deaths and left others marked for life, has become a medical rarity in Florida. Records of the State Board of Health showed that the last smallpox death in this state occurred in 1943, and the last reported case was in 1944. Immunization is still considered necessary to prevent recurrence of the disease.

Meanwhile, it was noted that the number of smallpox immunizations performed by county health departments increased from 38,475 such injections in 1945 to 40,894 immunizations in 1950, the most recent year for which full figures are available.

"These figures are not a true index to the actual number of immunizations, since thousands of persons had this service performed by family doctors and private physicians," said Dr. Sowder, "but they do indicate more reliance on immunizations as a health safeguard."

Immunizations against typhoid and diphtheria have shown similar, but not quite so spectacular results. For typhoid, immunizations jumped from 56,928 performed in 1945 to 116,148 such injections in 1950. Meanwhile typhoid dropped from 14 deaths reported in 1945 to one death in 1951.

For diphtheria, there were 30 deaths reported for 1945, as compared with eight deaths in 1950. Immunizations jumped from 32,578 performed in 1945 to 58,255 in 1950.

Tetanus still remains a problem, and immunizations for this often-fatal disease are being increased. During the past two years, immunizations climbed from 62,456 performed in 1949 to 68,937 in 1950. The number of deaths by years included: 1945, 53; 1946, 46; 1947, 49; 1948, 48; 1949, 36; and 1950, 35.

Darkest spot in the picture is whooping cough, which appears to travel in cycles. During 1950, for instance, the number of cases reported to county health departments totaled 471, with eight deaths noted. But for the first ten months of this year, reported cases reached a total of 829, with 24 deaths listed. Figures on cases are not complete, a since not all of them are reported to county health departments.

Peak periods in recent years include 1946, with 1,029 reported cases and 12 deaths, and 1947, with 1,861 reported cases and 39 deaths. The low point during the past six years occurred in 1949, with 191 reported cases and six deaths.

Immunization for whooping cough has been developed within the past few years, however, but interest lags. There were 36,253 immunizations performed by county health departments for this disease, as compared with 33,598 such protective injections in 1950.

OPS Issues Ceiling Price Covering Farm Equipment

The Office of Price Stabilization has issued a tailored ceiling price regulation (CPR 100) covering retail sales of new and used farm equipment and repair parts. This announcement was made by John E. Neel, OPS acting district director, with headquarters in Miami.

Previously, resellers of farm equipment and repair parts were covered by the resellers' Ceiling Price Regulation of (CPR 67), issued on August 21. The regulation issued this week, Ceiling Price Regulation 100, effective December 10, 1951, uses the basic pricing technique of CPR 67, but is designed to meet the peculiar and specific pricing problems of retail sellers of farm equipment.

It is not expected that the new regulation will materially affect the general level of retail prices prevailing before its issuance. OPS officials said, since it is based generally on the historical pricing practices prevailing in the industry.

In general, ceiling prices are established on the basis of manufacturers' current published list prices, f.o.b. factory, plus a handling and service charge of 5 percent of the list price, and a charge for inbound transportation.

In the case of new farm equipment repair parts, ceilings are established as the manufacturers' current published list prices, f.o.b. factory, plus either (1) the manufacturer's or wholesaler distributor's handling charge and actual transportation cost paid by the seller, or (2) a percentage of the list price equal to the average percentage used by the farm equipment dealer during the period April 1 through June 24, 1950.

If a retailer dealer does not use the price list method of pricing, he may determine his ceiling price by applying the highest markup he realized during the period April 1 through June 24, 1950, as applied to his net invoice or delivered cost, depending upon the practice he followed in this period. Ceiling prices for used farm equipment and repair parts are dependent on the type of seller. In the case of auction sales, the auctioneer must notify the Office of Price Stabilization in writing as to the place, date and time of sale, and furnish a general description of the equipment to be auctioned and copy of any announcement of the sale. This information must be filed with OPS at least six days before the sale.

Sellers must furnish purchasers of new or used equipment selling for $25,000 or more, with an invoice showing: (1) name and address of purchaser; (2) date of sale; (3) a description of the item sold, including make, model and serial number, if any; (4) selling price; (5) itemized statement of any extra charges, including itemized list of parts and labor, if any, used in repairing or reconditioning the equipment.

In the case of sales of reconditioned and guaranteed equipment, the seller will furnish the buyer with a form of guarantee as indicated under Appendix 'A' of the regulation.

CHRISTENS NEW MOBILE GENERATING PLANT

Florida's newest and most unique generating plant, mounted on a railroad flatcar, was christened and started on its first assignment by Florida Power & Light Company last week. It is one of two such plants designed by Florida Power & Light engineers for emergency and seasonal use wherever needed on its state-wide system.

Augmenting the utility's fleet of nine smaller generating units mounted on highway trailers, the railway plants can also be quickly moved into an area as an emergency source of power. Designed for continuous operation if necessary, they will normally supplement power supply facilities wherever they can be used to best advantage on the Company's system.

Mounted on special 74-foot flatcars, the railway plants are nearly twice as long as the standard 40-foot boxcar. Each contains a 1000-horse-power Diesel engine and a 700-kilowatt generator.

They are completely self-contained, including transformers, switchboards, fuel tanks and even living quarters for the plant crew.

The silver sides of the car depict FP&L's familiar Reddy Kilowatt figure with the lightning-stroke arms and electric lamp nose as saying, "I'm Reddy!"

Sixteen-year-old Pat New, of Delray Beach, is the first entrant in the annual Gladoli Queen contest to be held at Delray Beach, Jan. 26. The Delray American Legion Auxiliary sponsored the high school junior. Local organizations have been invited to sponsor a candidate in the contest.

Discharged Veterans Must Act Immediately On Gov't
Insurance Waiver

Recently-discharged veterans who were granted a waiver of only a part of their premiums on their permanent plans of Government life insurance while they were in active service must act immediately after their release or separation to keep this insurance in force under full premium-paying conditions.

If the veterans surrendered their permanent plans of Government life insurance for their cash value on or after April 25, 1951, while they were in active service so as to take advantage of the free indemnity protection, they must act within 120 days of their release or separation to reinstate their policies or to apply for new permanent plan insurance.

As used in this article, permanent plans of Government life insurance mean any of the permanent plans issued under National Service Life Insurance or U. S. Government Life Insurance, such as ordinary life, 20-pay life, 30-pay life, and the various endowment plans.

Under the Servicemen's Indemnity and Insurance Acts of 1951 that became law April 25, 1951, persons in active military service on and after that date could take any one of three courses with their permanent NSLI or USGLI policies.

They could: (1) continue to pay the full premium as in the past; (2) apply for waiver of a part of their premium, or (3) surrender their policies for the cash value and be covered by the free indemnity protection.

Those who elected to pay the full premium must continue to do so immediately after release or separation from active service if they wish to keep their policies in force thereafter.

Those who were granted a waiver of part of their permanent plan premium (under Section 622 of the NSLI Act) were instructed to pay the full premium while they were in active service and VA would refund the waived portion.

When these persons are released or separated from active service, they should continue to pay the full premiums, when due, directly to Veterans Administration, Washington 25, D. C. That portion of the waived premium which is paid under this arrangement will be rethe issuance of a new permanent policy on the same plan and not in excess of the amount of the policy surrendered for cash, and pay the required premium:

2. They may reinstate their surrendered permanent plan of insurance, without a physical examination, by paying the required reserve and the premium for the current month. Applications for reinstatement should be mailed to Veterans Administration, Washington 25, D. C.

For further information, veterans should contact their nearest VA office as soon after separation or release from service as possible.
